Why are we moving so fast ?
Where are we going ?

We look but do not see.

We hear but do not listen.

We touch but do not feel.

There is a balance between doing and being.
And we must satisfy the hunger
pangs of our spirit
With what may seem to be the most illusive of morsels ...
- beauty.

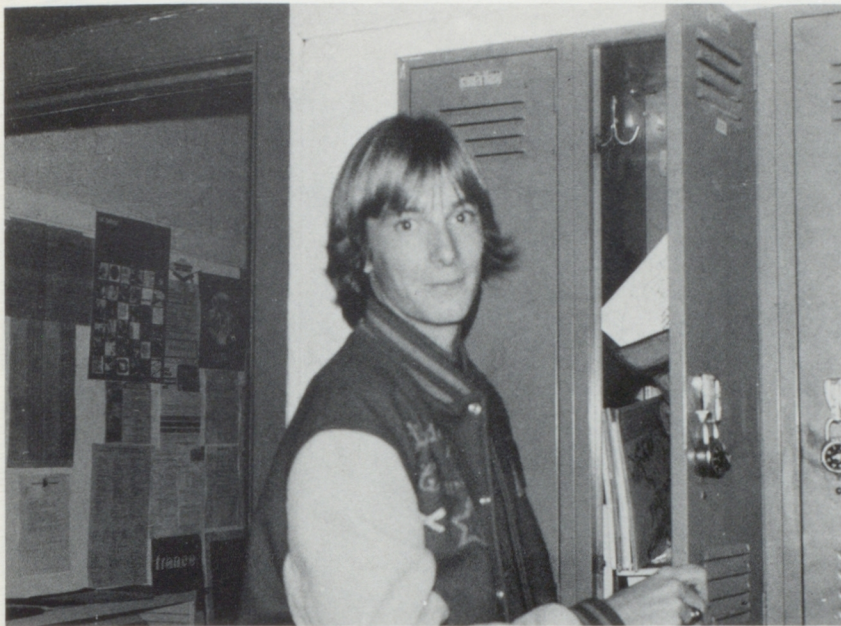

What is beautiful is good,
and who is good will soon be beautiful.

To be beautiful and to be calm
is the ideal of nature.

To be beautiful and to be calm
is the ideal of nature

A thing of beauty is a joy forever.
It's loveliness increases . . .

it will never pass into nothingness.

Youth is happy because it has the ability to see beauty. Anyone who keeps the ability to see beauty never grows old.

Beauty is God's Handwriting.
Welcome it in every passing day.

Beauty is the radiance of truth,
the fragrance of goodness.

In Memoriam

The theme of the Year Book is welcome, well-chosen, and effective for good. The present generation claims to be in love with the beautiful. In proof of which we might adduce the constant interest in beauty contests, the elevation of actresses and actors to the rank of fabulously salaried individuals, our horror of ugliness, pain and suffering. On the other hand, we are surrounded by disorder in economic centers, ghastly displays in advertising, the deordinating of the most sacred purposes, and prevalent poor taste in attire. Our current love for beauty fails to find fulfillment in as much as it stops at the superficial. We burrow into the sensible only to forget ourselves and our full capabilities. Little wonder, we conclude, "Beauty is only skin deep."

True beauty must reach the mind and the soul and suggest that the object of delight approximates our conception of an ideal. We can gain a deeper insight into the beauty of the soul by looking for a moment at one of the briefest definitions of beauty. Beauty has been called the "splendor of order"; order, in other words so clearly breaking through the material in which it is found as to command our attention and admiration. This is a profound and compact definition; the clue to the essential beauty in the soul, for the soul has a double principle of order; the reason of man and wisdom of God. Both of these carry with them the motion of light, of clarity, of splendid illumination: the one the light in the hands of a wayfarer, guiding each of his steps, sweeping about the dark world around him in a constant revelation of truth, of goodness, of beauty; the other, the powerful creative beacon that calls into being the path followed by the pilgrim man, that creates the beauty he sees, that calls him home to the source of all beauty. To recognize and appreciate Beauty there must be at least an awareness of the true and the good.

This point was illustrated in the Christmas Sermon when Father Francis J. Silva, S.J., exclaimed, "A star is only a star unless we recognize it as a work of God."

To continue and to elaborate on the notion of Beauty, the prayers of the American Astronauts, "The Lunar Liturgy", may well be quoted: "In awe and reverence—virtues forgotten by atheists—they sang the glory of God as they sailed over the cold moon. In a voyage of a half a million miles through spatial silence they discovered God. In that silent, awesome sanctuary they experienced the mighty, ineffable, exquisitely gentle Presence of God. They saw Him everywhere—in the blinding brilliance of the sun, the colorful sparkling gem of the earth, the prehistoric ruggedness of the moon, the infernal blackness of the infinite interstellar spatial seas. Indeed, they heard Him in the very thunderous sacred silence of space and in the hushed rhythm of the circling spheres. To a worldwide audience of hundreds of millions, Astronauts Anders, Lovell and Borman celebrated God's creation of heaven, earth, light, day, night, the seas, lands, and all forms of life. And with God they agreed enthusiastically that 'It was good!' In awe, reverence and filial love they told the whole world what they experienced. Good? That was the understatement of the centuries. It was fantastic, stupendous, magnificent, sublime! Across the centuries they echoed the ecstatic exclamation of the Psalmist: 'The heavens proclaim the glory of God and the firmament announces the work of His Hands.'"

Closer to home than the stars and the planets, than the sun and the moon and the galaxies, is God's greatest gift to us, His creatures—namely, Himself in the Holy Eucharist! Present on our altars day and night and surrounded by architecture and ornamentation, including some of the most exquisite works of art, burning candles, and the unseen Choirs of Angels and Archangels! Such an outlay of His wisdom and love, and such a concentration of His Divine Sweetness, prompts us to declare with the Psalmist: "I have loved, O Lord, the Beauty of Your House and the Place where Your Glory dwells!"

Priests Play a Vital Role

Rt. Rev. Monsignor Alvin Wagner, Pastor

Because our schools are founded on Catholic ideals, our parish priests and diocesan leaders play a vital role in education. Although some of them teach, they do more by providing a valuable source for guidance and support. Visible evidence of this was expressed in the Mass celebrated here by Bishop Cummins at the beginning of the year. The priests further exemplified Christian tradition through their participation in community and school projects. Ever sensitive to the needs of both parishoners and students, they serve as a model of dedication to both God and man.

Serving as an advisory council in matters of school policy, the SJND school board is composed of parents and parish alumni who are dedicated to serving the two schools as fully as possible. Working in cooperation with the parish and school faculty, the board concerns itself with budgets and works of policy for the good of all students. They are a vital and necessary force in the parish community, combining the aim of Catholic education and that of service to others into an effective goal.

Another equally important organization is the Parent-Teacher Guild, which is more directly involved in school activities. Composed of concerned and active parents, the PTG plans fund-raisers, provides volunteers in areas such as office duties, and the invaluable hot lunch program.

Together, the school board and the PTG create the backbone of support for the school

Secretaries Are Here To Help

In the beginning was chaos. Then came secretaries. Throughout the year, they worked to maintain a helpful attitude toward students, parents, and visitors. With their dedicated dispositions, the secretaries helped to make the school a more interesting and satisfying place to be.

Administrators Spark Dialogue

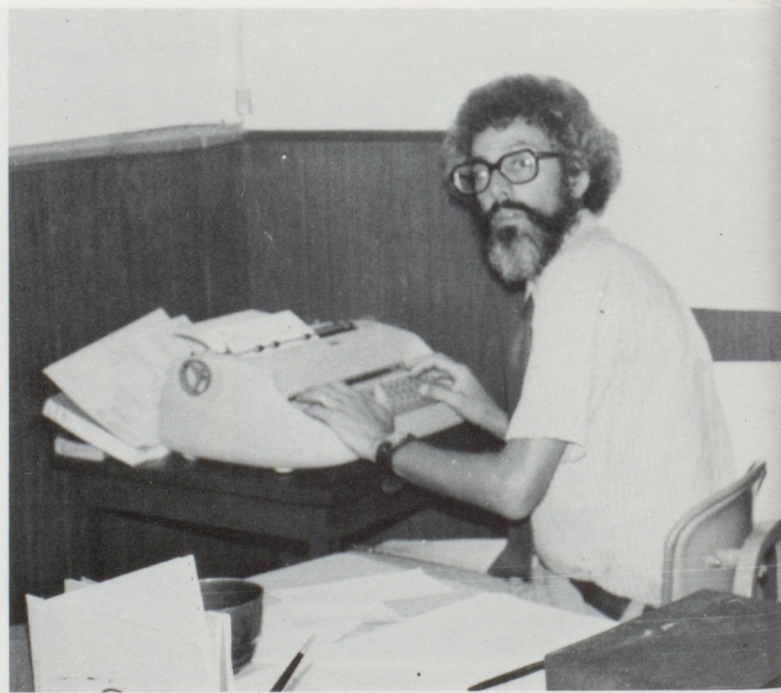

Mr. Anthony Aiello, Principal, Religion

Sr. Veronica Skillin, Administrator, Religion

Sr. Claire Blohm, Curriculum Director, Math

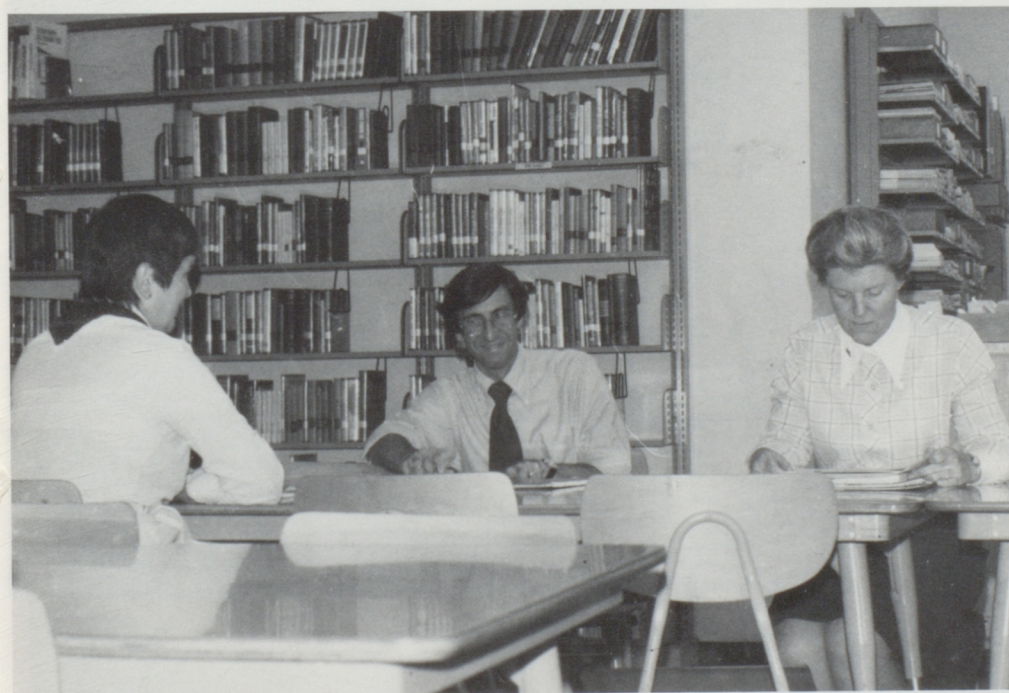

Mr. Philip Gravem, Vice-Principal, Geography

Miss Georgia Vlahos, Dean of Studies, Speech, Drama

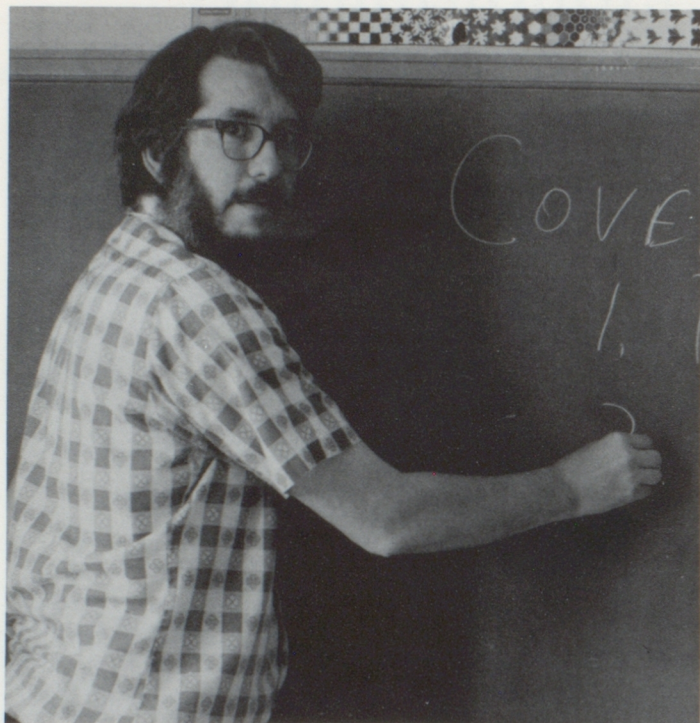

Sr. Carol Kenning, Student Activities Director, English, Speech, Religion

This year's administration underwent a metamorphosis as St. Joseph and Notre Dame welcomed new additions. The accent was on further growth rather than change, exemplified by frequent meetings of leaders from both schools. Parents were also considered as they received announcements and bulletins informing them of campus activities and decisions. Although modernization was included, a basic concern of the administrators was to keep communication between students and faculty as open and productive as possible.

Mr. Jack Gordon, Religion

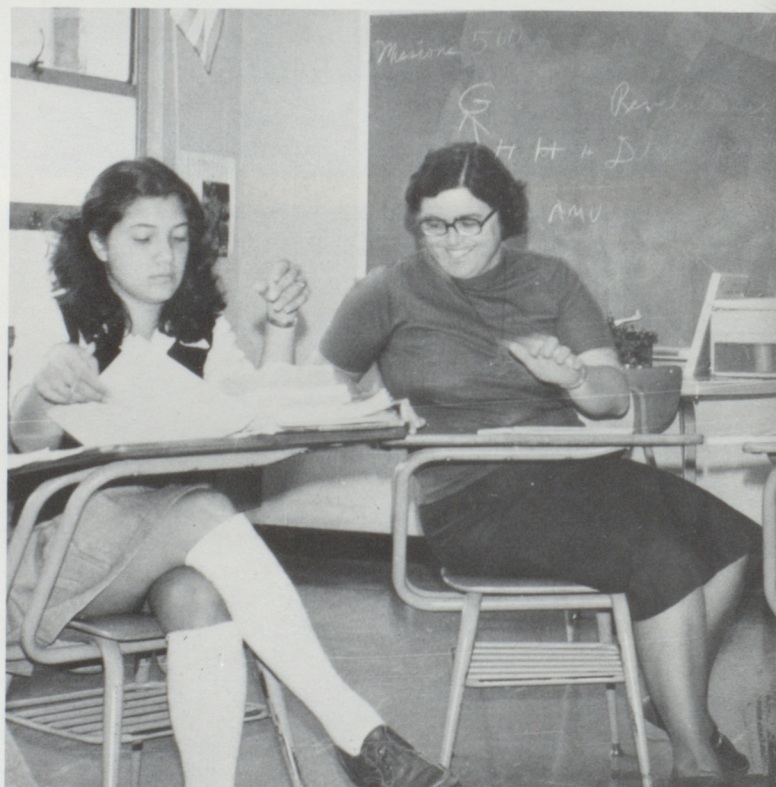

Rev. William Kegel, S.J., Religion

Sister Marilyn Zaknich, Religion, English

This year, religion instructors stressed the continuation of faith outside the classroom. In addition to traditional approaches to doctrines, a mime film and a mock trial of Adam and Eve opened minds to new insights. Through these lessons, coupled with standard methods, students were able to reflect upon and understand God's Word more fully.

Counselors Keep Pace

Mr. Robert J. Sickenger, Guidance Director

The guidance department continued the school tradition of helping its students keep pace with the world around them. In addition to sponsoring a parents' college night and hosting representatives from various universities, the guidance department counseled students of all divisions on their future goals and present schoolwork.

History Opens Doors to Past and Future

Mrs. Sharon Lane, Civics, History

Mr. Gregory Fonzeno, History, Economics

History allows us to take a scrutinizing view of our past and apply it to the issues of the present and future. This year was set apart by its broad use of teaching methods. These ranged from a reproduction of a feudal society to one of a Greek Assembly. The year also included a mock election and a visit by Congressman Pete Stark. Creative activities and traditional methods opened windows to the past and doors to the future.

Electives Spur Involvement

Mrs. Bessie Reeves, Music

Elective studies add much to the core curriculum. This year, that meant art, mechanical drawing, choral, business courses and sewing. Expanded interest in clothing courses led to the newly-begun bachelor's arts program for aspiring tailors.

Have you ever bisected an angle or dissected a frog? Teachers in both science and math departments offered these opportunities. Studies of the many and varied aspects of any of 50 diseases, as well as of the effects of chemicals on plant and animal life were also possibilities. Instructors spent much time after school wading through some of the more difficult mathematical problems with confused students. In addition, both departments offered curricula ranging from introductory classes of about 30 students to smaller, more specialized courses.

English Is More Than Speaking

Mrs. Jean Woltering, English, Dance

Miss Christine Micheli, English

There is no better reward than to be heard and appreciated. English, through speech, teaches us to inform, entertain and persuade by communication of ideas. This year, topics ranged from such innovative choices as "Pumpkin Carving" and "Kangaroos" to more pressing issues including "Man's Inhumanity to the Handicapped." These and similar subjects not only informed, but reinforced the basic elements of grammar and composition. Study of such classics as John Steinbeck's The Pearl and Thornton Wilder's Our Town added to the students' appreciation of the written word.

Foreign languages provide us with a bridge to the world. Fortunately, this year's department boasts of teachers who are sharing their native tongues. Many have spent their vacations visiting such countries as Mexico, Italy, and France. This aided students in learning not only language but culture as well.

Amid the bustle of a changing year, the class of '80 eagerly advanced to the ranks with a spirit of goodwill, cheerfully distributing their talents to all facets of school life. With the arrival of class rings highlighting their activities, the Juniors exercised their curiosity, participating actively in student government and a variety of clubs. Vivacious yet purposeful, they spiritedly prepared to face even greater challenges.

Variety Is the Spice of Life

For the Class of 1980, variety was the 'spice of life.' From classwork to candycanes and from food to frolick, their varied personalities showed through in every school activity. Their spirit was a special Jaguar spirit, and with it, they brought a unique view of life to everything they did.

Juniors Participate With a Flair

The Junior class, with their usual spunk, partook in various events. Through these diverse activities, it was obvious that they all possessed that certain Junior flair - a flair for anything from schoolwork to sports. All in all, the class of 1980 proved to be a vibrant source of spirit and energy for the schools.

Sophs Present Disney ... Bear Style!

One morning the stands were bare; no decorations were in sight. By noon, the stands were filled with screaming, shouting, enthusiastic Sophomores. Replicas of world-famous Disney characters festooned the walls. With winning in mind, the Bears united and projected their spirit in a spectacular parade and skit, starring the Mouseketeers, Mowgli the Jungle Boy, Cinderella, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, and naturally led by 50-year-old Mickey Mouse. Although it did not triumph this year, the Class of '81 will return.

Sophomores Carry the News

The 1978-79
Sophomore class began and ended their year by spreading the news of '81.

This meant, above all,
gatherings of every size,
for a little bit of listening,
a little bit of discussion, and a little bit of just plain talking. Whether catching up with the Kaleidoscope, meeting in the yard, news was in the air and the

Bears Bound Ahead

Full of expectations for the new year, the Class of '81 bounded ahead with a renewed sense of pride. They plunged wholeheartedly into such lively activities as Spirit Week and lunchtime contests, generating rousing enthusiasm and a sense of togetherness. This feeling manifested itself in the imaginative attendance of athletic events, hearty participation in the Halloween dance, and candid infiltration of school clubs. By cooperating as a group, the sophomores had gained more than the material; they had built a strong unity among themselves.

FRESHMEN

Frosh Display Spunk

Frosh students were given a unique chance to express themselves during the week-long ordeal known as "initiation". Monday found them securely in the jaws of the seniors, who softened the grip by doling out pink carnations to the bewildered girls. Props in hand, the freshmen peeked out from candid billboards, bobbed for donuts, and paraded obediently in a dog show staged in their honor. Friday found them much wiser and eager for the goodies provided by their senior mentors. After a week of chaos, the Class of '82 was ready to settle down.

The Class of '82 had the cougar as its mascot and blue and gold as its colors for their premier year. Although the Cougars did not prevail in this year's competition, they gained valuable experience in organizing an unruly class into a hard-working group. Throughout the week, the Frosh displayed great spirit, highlighted by a well-attended parade and a skit entitled 'Day on the Green '82'. With or without the trophy, the Frosh had won out.

Freshmen Premier With Music

Freshmen Spread Holiday Cheer

Attempting to spread holiday spirit to the school, the Freshmen always put their best foot forward. This year's class carried their "Spirit of Christmas" wherever they went and in whatever they did. Visiting with Santa, decorating doors, and making new friends helped to unite the Class of '82 during this festive season, and together each proved that spirit is what the Freshmen are all about.

ACTIVITIES

Picnic Welcomes All

Making new acquaintances and enhancing old school friendships, students enjoyed an after-school picnic at Crown Memorial Beach. The afternoon of games and activities, planned by the Student Council, ended in an unexpected water fight.

El Rancho Invites Fun In the Sun

St. Joseph's annual parish extravaganza, El Rancho Day, provided lively festivities in scorching weather. Visitors enjoyed such activities as a fast-paced disco, screaming rides, and exciting booths of every variety. In addition to providing pillows and aprons and joining in clean-up, the students initiated and organized a face-painting booth. New friends and memorable times were the reward for a hard day's work.

Spirit Is the Word

Once again St. Joseph's and Notre Dame confronted that mid-November phenomena known as Spirit Week. Each class sought to portray its spirit using different themes. The Freshmen took us to a Day on the Green and the Sophomores brought the magic of Walt Disney to our gym. Meanwhile the Juniors escorted us to the Circus and the Seniors brought the 50's back to life with their rendition of GREASE. The preparation took much time and work. Suddenly, the week was upon us, and in a flash it was past. Before we knew it, the judges had determined the winners. Yet somehow who won didn't really matter anymore, for the four, diverse divisions had come together to form a unified body, and that had been the goal. Oh, and who won? Why, the Seniors, of course!

Disco Fever Hits School

After the business of a hard day at school, or just for the fun of it, a dance is a great place to be. The Student Council this year realized that and spent much of its time organizing such social events as the Winter Ball, the Freshman Welcome-Dance, and a new innovation - post-game dances. All in all, students this year proved that a dance is definitely a good way to spend the evening.

Lunch Activities Arouse Interest

From 12:05 to 12:40 each day, students at SJND became a part of some unusual activities. They could be seen eating huge platters of ice cream without their hands, being made up as goblins and witches, carving pumpkins, or enjoying one another's company at any event. One thing is for sure - it can never be said that students of SJND have dull lunch hours.

Students Work to Lead and Unite

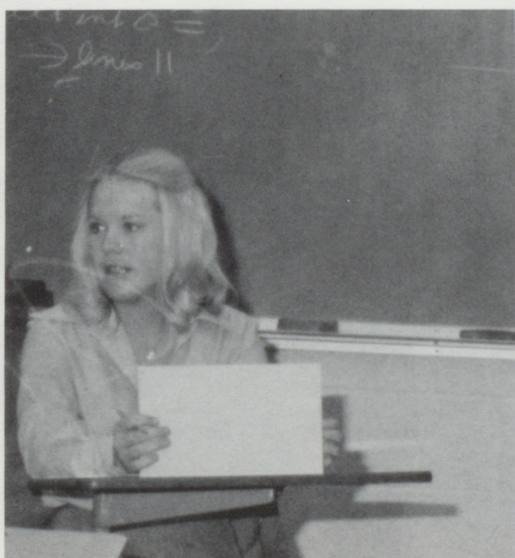

With few returning officers, the SJND Student Council entered the year with a new-found enthusiasm. Meeting twice during the summer and once a week during the school year, the Council planned all student body activities keeping a two-fold purpose in mind: unifying the student body and promoting school spirit. All activities from the school picnic to Spirit Week were directed to fulfill these purposes.

Class Officers Achieve Their Goal: Unity

This year class officers worked together with one goal in mind: to bond students together by involvement in school affairs. To start the year they organized various committees and opened communication between homerooms. The success of such activities as Spirit Week, the Winter Ball and the proms was due to students working together under the leadership of the class officers. By attending weekly student council meetings and leading periodic class meetings they achieved their goal.

Alpine Club Attracts Huge Crowds

Motivated by a fresh season, this year's Alpine Club blazed the trails under the leadership of Mr. Freeman. Thankful for long-awaited snow, students packed their bags and hopes to take to the smooth hills surrounding Lake Tahoe. But skiing wasn't the only sport these enthusiasts enjoyed. Members pursued horseback riding, backpacking, and any other accessible sport that found them in the open air.

A first-hand glimpse definitely enriches the study of government so SJ and ND students had the opportunity to visit Washington, D.C. for one week. Sponsored by the Close-Up Foundation and moderated by Mr. Kippi and Mrs. Hanna, participants toured the capital, spoke to prominent officials about pertinent government issues and returned fully informed.

Speak Up!

To speak up is to be seen and appreciated, and the members of the Speech Club are just that. Competing in local and state tournaments, they developed the skills of convincing oration and effective communication. The Speech Club enjoyed an excellent year as they strove to reach the heights of masterful articulation.

Kaleidoscope Shines In Print

Information is what everybody wants, and this year SJND was blessed with just that. For the first time in several years, a newspaper originated and prospered under the guidance of Miss Micheli and a dedicated staff. The paper covered events from both schools, and made it a point to report news from all facets of campus life. Major happenings such as Spirit Week were featured, as well as sports and social highlights. Possessing an excellent and spirited staff headed by editor Caroline Langley, the SJND school newspaper held tenaciously to its eminent role in school tradition.

"Whatever You Do ..."

Learning about world conditions and lending their helping hands to our less fortunate neighbors of the third world, the Mission Club gathered together to promote a bond between students and the Church's mission of peace and justice. By sponsoring fundraisers and working for the poor, their mission spread itself through the school. Throughout the year, members strove to follow their Mission Week theme: "Whatever you do ..."

Students Share Cultural Traditions

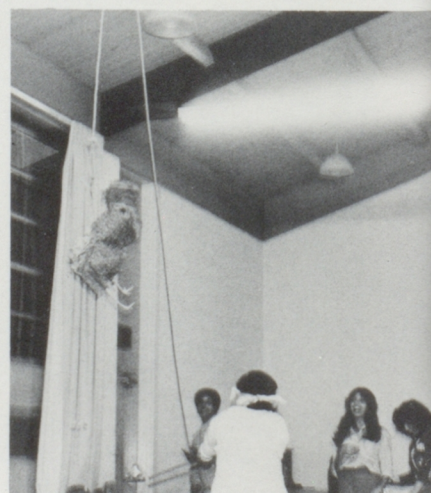

The International Club began its first year with the theme of 'unity within the school.' Getting to know the opinions, personalities, and customs of fellow students and cultures, the club sponsored activities ranging from Easter telegrams to cultural speakers. This type of varied program helped to create the desired spirit of unity.

Spanish Traditions Flourish

The Spanish Club, under the direction of Miss Castellanos, plunged into the new year full of enthusiasm. The club was the driving force behind a Mass honoring Our Lady of Guadalupe. During Advent they held their annual Posada according to Mexican tradition, followed by a dinner and gala party. By the way, who broke the pinata?

Ethnic Club Started Once Again

Members of both French and Italian descents, as well as of other nationalities, had a chance this year to improve their knowledge of European customs by joining the French-Italian Club, moderated by Miss Sartori. Begun upon the students' request, the club participated in activities ranging from a performance by Marcel Marceau to a dinner at an authentic Italian cafe. Together, members worked toward a better understanding of foreign languages and traditions.

Opening their membership to all girls of Notre Dame High School, the Girls' Athletic Association worked to spread athletic unity throughout the school. Raising money, sponsoring dances, selling Tee-shirts, and a new form of announcing basketball games accented the club's eventful year. Acting as an athletic example to the school, the G.A.A. showed its spirit and dedication to the promotion of physical fitness.

Musical Talent Brings Cheers

The Choral Group this year provided a neverending source of entertainment for the entire school. Besides singing at both the Student Council Christmas Mass and the Baccalaureate Mass, several of the members participated in their own production of the musical "Bye, Bye, Birdie." Through cheerful involvement and dedicated hard work, the group brought a new appreciation of the meaning of music to everyone.

REFLECTIONS Staff Collects Memories

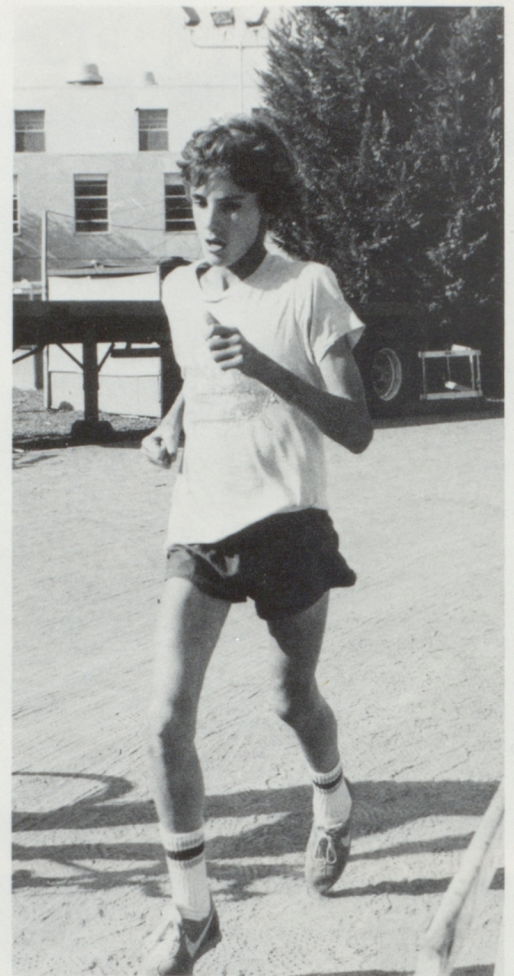

Snapping pictures of unsuspecting students, then cropping, fitting, and writing copy for them were only the surface duties of the 1978-79 Yearbook Club. By giving up after-school, weekend, and vacation time, staff members demonstrated their dedication to the creation of a new and different way to remember the year. They strove to capture the true spirit of the Saint Joseph's and Notre Dame students through their production of a varied collection of high school memorabilia.

Cross Country Produces Mixed Results

The 1979 St. Joseph's and Notre Dame Cross Country Harriers, under the direction of their spirited new coach, Mr. Coakley, practiced and ran hard, but with mixed results. The boys' team, besieged by a long string of injuries, ran JV at the end of the season, finishing second in the League meet. The team, however, with standouts Keith Howard, Paul Dias, and David Orille returning, holds promise for upcoming seasons. The girls' team, led by valuable Grace Murphy and medal-winners Lisa Lockwood and Maeve Murphy, had a successful season which qualified it to enter the North Coast Section of the CAL.

High Energy Rages On Court

"Bump! Set! Spike! Win!" was the opening cry of the volleyball teams. Long practices and wild energy proved that even a losing season can be enjoyable.

Backed by the confidence and coaching of Mrs. Linda Jardin, both teams faced tough tournaments, St. Vincent's and St. Elizabeth's along with a hard season.

This year's Falcons, whether losing or not, discovered that volleyball provides team spirit and hard work, as well as self-improvement for all.

Among other achievements, Coach Fred Mino guided the Pilots to a third place finish in the Redwood City Tournament in December. The team, with only two players not returning, made a strong showing in the C.A.L. and achieved a play-off berth. Coach Mino also had many squad members placed on the C.A.L. All-League team.

Netters Smash Opposition

Coached by the talented Don Musso, the tennis team of 1978-79 jumped into the new season with hopes of taking the league title. Bolstered by a flock of returnees, Coach Musso was sure his team could handle the pressures of each hard-fought match.

Falcons Improve With Style

1 Δ

This year, the Falcon basketball team put out a tremendous effort while gaining much needed experience for the forthcoming years. Sparked by the performances of upperclassmen Joanne Ratto, sisters Sheila and Sandra Davis and Patrice Gibson, members worked hard under the leadership of Coach Paul Phelps. In the end it was a combination of sportsmanship and dedication which helped to make the season a winning one.

Pilots Strive To Win

Boasting a new coach, new players, and a new system, the spirited JV basketball players practiced hard and improved greatly. Throughout the year, they exhibited a growth in sportsmanship and team work alike. Coached by Mr. Dennis Flannery, the Pilots learned how to operate as a group. They had started out as individuals and finished as a team.

Beginning the season with hope and promise, the young Pilot Varsity squad finished with an eye toward the future after a disappointing 3-11 C.A.L. record. The team, attempting to regroup after last year's loss of many of its players, was hit with serious injuries at the start of the season, with Jim Giron, Mark Curry, Keith Duncan and Dennis McGue all out at various times. They recovered, though, in time for league play, where the Pilots played exciting and spirited ball in losing several close game. Yet, the team holds promise, as only two players, Keith Duncan and Mark Curry, will not be returning next year. So, as we look ahead, we cannot but expect to see the Pilots flying high in the C.A.L. once again.

It's the Spirit That Counts

The 1978-79 Cheerleading Squads were a talented group, who worked hard to communicate their enthusiasm to every student. Through Spirit Week presentations, half-time entertainment, and a little old-fashioned cheering, they exhibited one tremendous quality they possessed: spirit.

Track and field is more than it appears to be on the surface - it requires constant practice and a will for victory. Team members this year worked grueling hours in preparation for a successful season. True to the theme of putting 'one foot in front of the other', they boasted some outstanding players and many optimistic prospects for future seasons.

Reflections Continued ...

Moms and Daughters Share an Evening

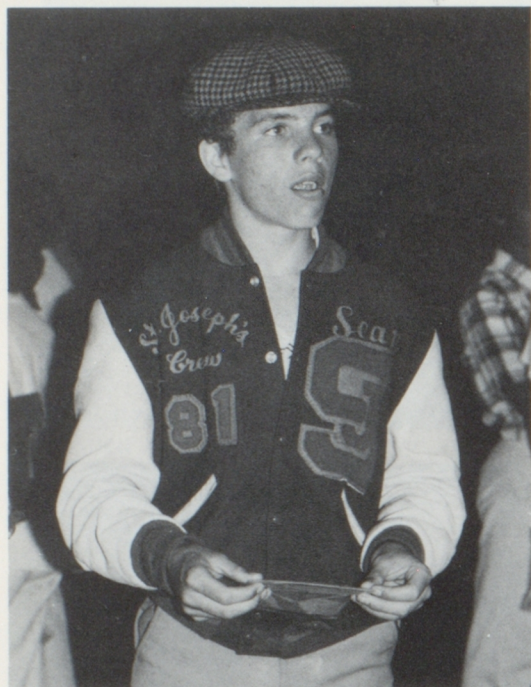

Bystanders knew it was the annual Mother-Daughter evening at Notre Dame as mothers and daughters, carrying flowers, gathered to process to the shrine of Mary prepared in the front of the basilica. Vice-President Dania Alvarez crowned Our Lady while the congregation, accompanied by organist Susan Timney sang "Immaculate Mary". This opened the celebration of Mass. The evening concluded with the traditional dessert in Notre Dame hall. Much intertainment, some silly, some serious, added the spice to an enjoyable evening.

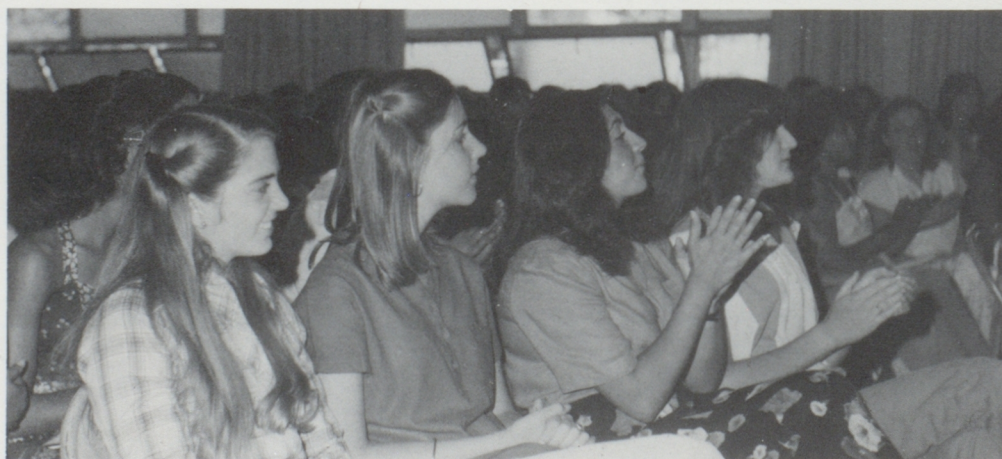

This year's fashion show proved to be a success. But let's give credit where credit is due. The highlight of the evening seemed to be the participation of students from SJHS - not as escorts, but as models. Despite snickers from the crowd and the expected nervousness at being a member of SJND's first bachelors' arts class, the boys gave everyone plenty of reason to be proud of them. The evening would not have been complete, however, without the other members of Mrs. Hanna's sewing classes, the girls, who modeled outfits ranging from sundresses to wool skirts. All in all, the program was a proper tribute to the year's work.

Students Model Their Creations

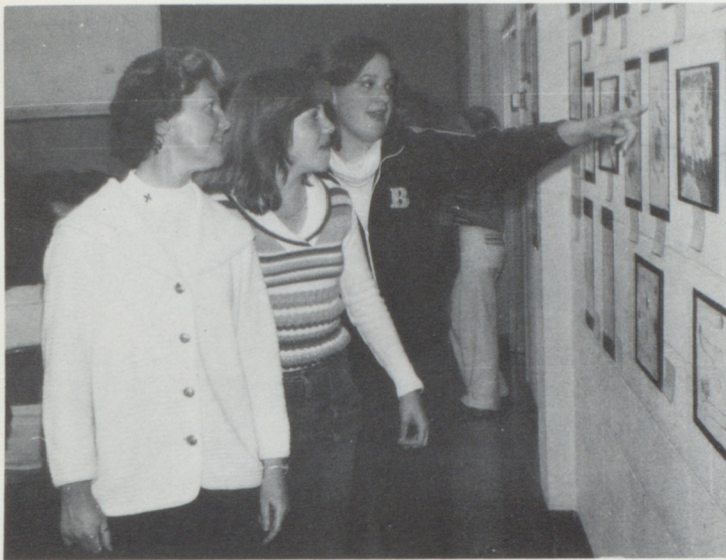

As the 1978-79 year drew to a close, three awards ceremonies were held to honor exceptional students. A special Senior Awards Night was enjoyable as Seniors, accompanied by their parents, were given various awards. The Sports Award Program gave athletes recognition, while the awards assembly on the last day of school completed the job of distributing honors to multi-talented students.

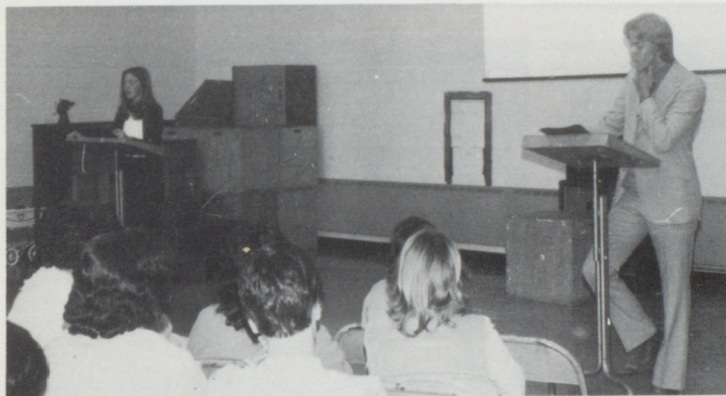

Awards Honor Gifted Students

Students Share Talents

This year, one night was set aside to give students a chance to display some unique talents. Guided by the creative arts classes, under the direction of Ms. Wesolek, Ms. Vlahos, and Mrs. Reeves, the finished products proved that hard work can be rewarding. Special recognition was gained by ND's Sheila Davis and SJ's Henry Call as each won award after award for their talents in art. Contributions to the evening's entertainment included art work, drama, choral, and instrumental music, which served to impress as well as provide enjoyment for those who attended.

Joint Effort Enlightens Julie Day

For the first time in many years, students of St. Joseph's High actively participated in preparations for the annual Julie Day Carnival, a task previously undertaken only by Notre Dame students. The day proved successful, boasting booths of every shape and kind, from dunking to disco. On the whole, the day was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

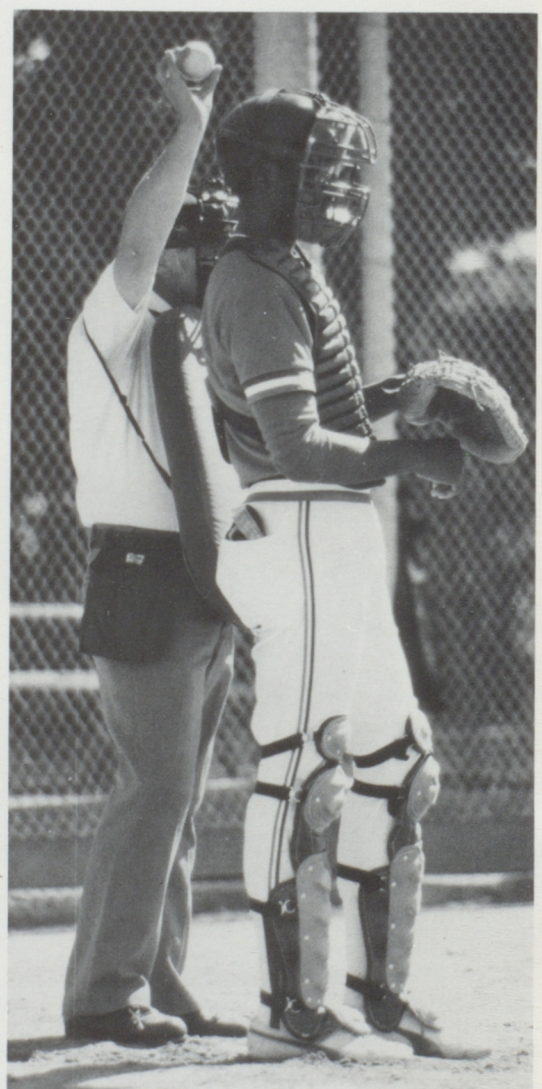

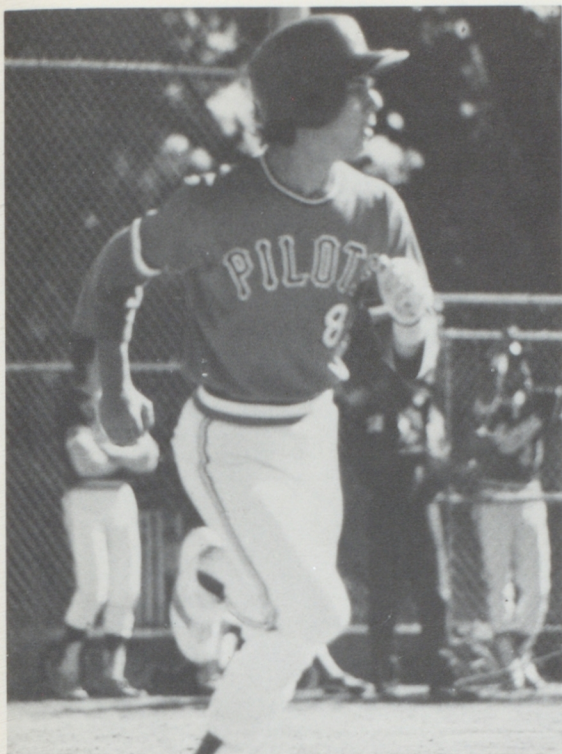

Signing Party Offers Fun-filled Memories

After the last yearbooks were distributed and the final debts were paid, SJ and ND students crowded into Notre Dame Hall to attend the now-traditional Yearbook Signing Party. Students agreed that the party was a smashing success for it gave everyone the chance to write their own words of wisdom in the books of all their friends.

Front Row: Joanne Ratto, Kim Hugger, Adrianna Guerrero.

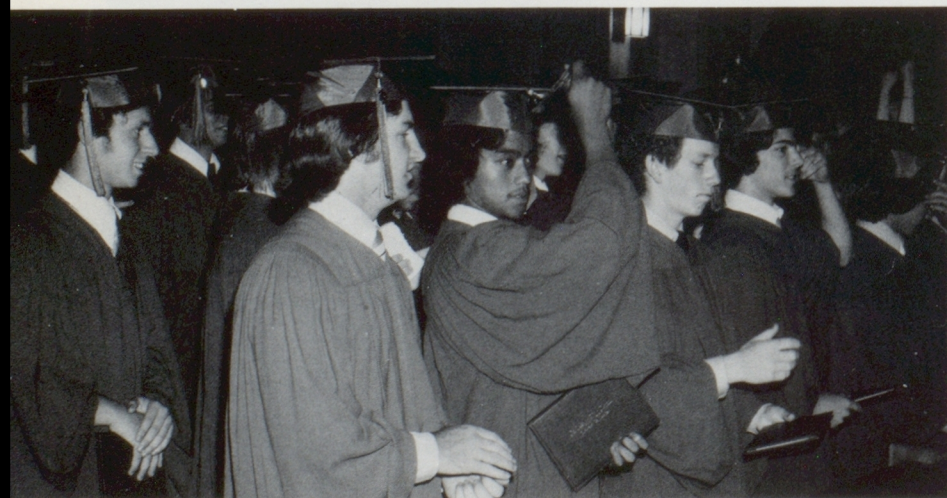

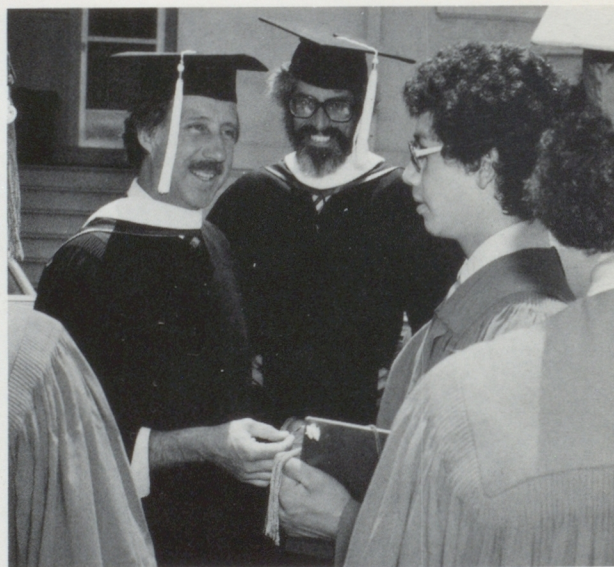

As the season of spring approached, so did the long hours of practice for this year's varsity baseball team. Under the new leadership of Coach Randy Hanson, the Pilots worked hard to be the best in the league. And though the season was not a winning one, SJ spirit was enough to carry them through.

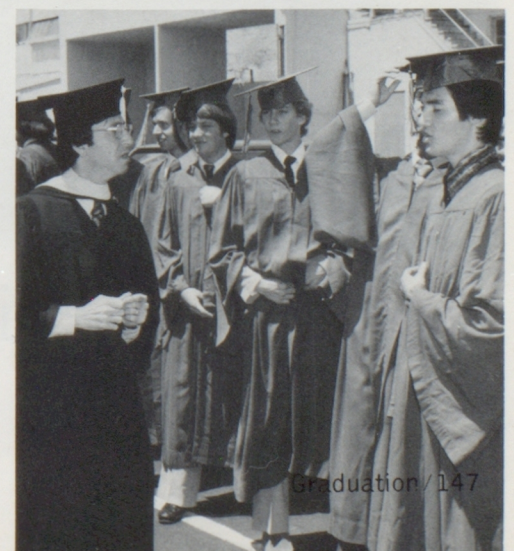

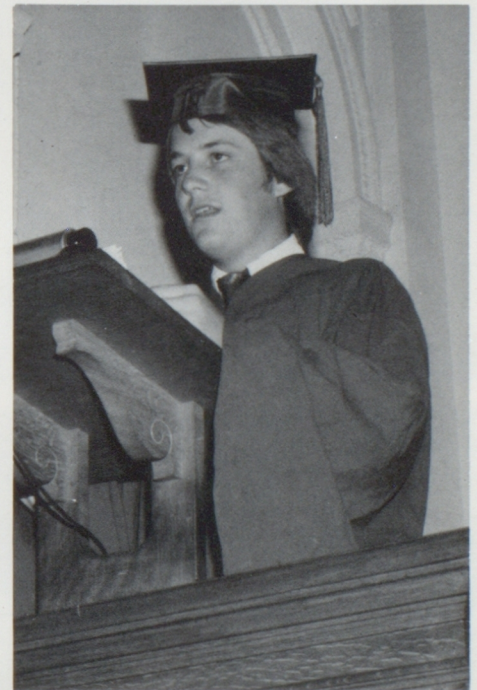

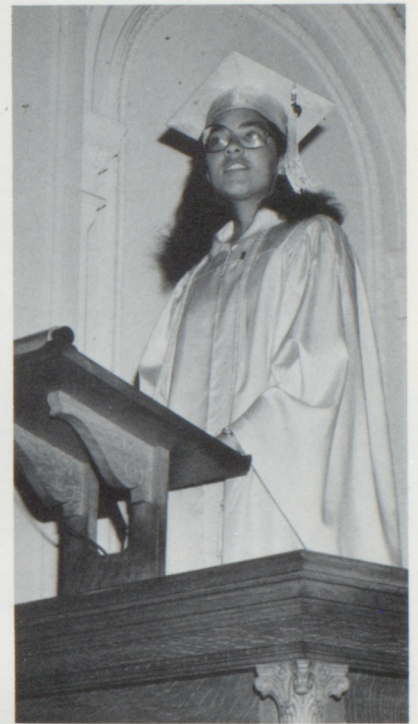

Take Me Out to the Ball Game

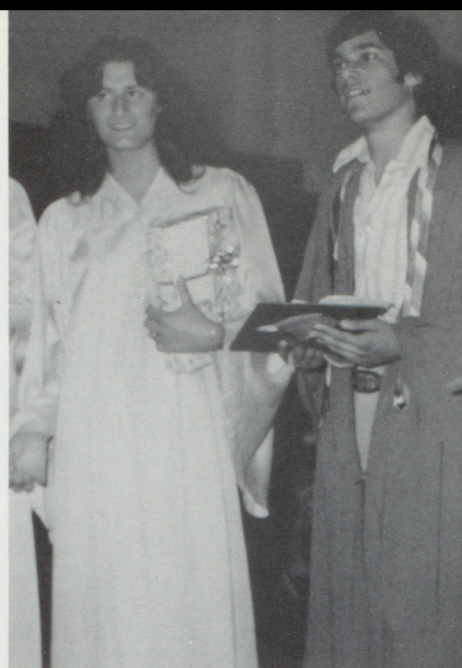

Seniors Take a Step Forward

With four memorable years behind them, the Class of 1979 was ready to bid farewell to St. Joseph and Notre Dame. Graduation activities began on Friday morning, June 2, with the girls' Class Day. One hundred and nine graduating seniors marched into the basilica Friday evening for the Baccalaureate Mass, which was followed by a reception for the graduates, their families and friends.

Commencement exercises on Saturday afternoon brought an end to the life of the Class of 1979. Fr. Gerard Ehler, O.P., preached a humorous and realistic commencement address and valedictorians Shirley Andrews and Michael Reiser presented timely challenges to their class mates. After receiving their diplomas from Monsignor Wagner, the satisfied graduates celebrated their new status.

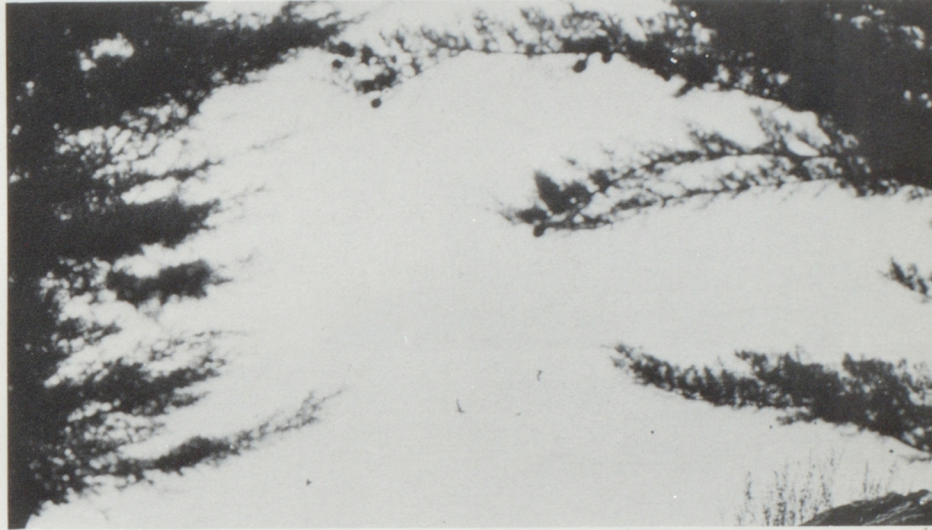

Seniors Bid Farewell

Thank You

Too many times people tend to overlook the beauty that surrounds them. When one is preoccupied, he neglects to observe the simplistic beauty of daily life. Man has created momentous works of art, but he survives on the kindness and gentleness of a friend. In order to "observe the time," one must be willing to reflect on the beauty of each living thing. I hope the 1978 - 79 yearbook will give you the opportunity to reflect on the past year; that it will bring to mind wonderful and cherished memories; and, that it will increase your awareness of God's beauty in all His creation.

I would especially like to thank Sr. Phyllis, Mr. Don Freeman, and Bordanaro and Zarcone photographers. I also owe many thanks to Ana Garcia, Terry Cronin, Christina Foster, Shaun Daniels, and Benny Parks, and the entire REFLECTIONS staff for all their help.
